REPUBLICANS HOLD CONFERENCE

Executive Committee Meets
In Washington.

Republican National Convention
Will Probably be Held Next Year to Unite Forces.

Washington, May 24.—After several hours' discussion the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee to-day tentatively agreed to call a meeting of the National Committee sixty days after the adjournment of the extra session of Congress, to determine whether a national convention shall be called to consider changes in basis of representation.

The session of the Executive Committee was devoted almost entirely to a discussion of the need for a national convention. Committeeman Warren, of Michigan, made the motion to call a meeting and practically every member joined in the debate that followed. There were no expressions of disapproval, the only questions were those of detail.

Practically unanimous sentiment developed in favor of holding the convention next year. The Executive Committee probably will recommend that to the National Committee. While a majority of the Executive Committee expressed the belief that the National Committee could change the party rules, they agreed that the weight of a party convention should be put behind any reorganization plan.

Senator Jones at first argued for an immediate convention, but finally agreed with the others for next year. Former Senator Sanders, National Committeeman from Tennessee, declared the Republicans should wait until "they heard the echoes from the country" on the achievements of the Democratic administration.

A policy of co-operation between the Republican National Committee was agreed upon, and it was determined that a campaign headquarters should soon be opened here. This follows a plan recently adopted by the Democrats.

Washington, May 24.—Members of the Republican National Executive Committee assembled here to-day to take stock of the party since the November defeat, look over the field for the future, and determine whether a meeting of the National Committee should be called to consider the advisability of holding a special National Convention.

Charles D. Hillis, chairman of the National Committee, who issued the call for the Executive Committee, reached Washington early in the day and conferred with several Republican leaders.

"I have talked with only three or four members of the Executive Committee," said Mr. Hillis, "and I find that some of them favor calling a meeting of the National Committee. I am not sure that a majority of them are of that opinion. We must talk things over before making any predictions."

When the committee met it had a memorial from the Conciliation Committee of Republican Progressives, headed by Senator Cummins, appointed as a result of the recent Chicago conference. This formulated a request that an early meeting of the National Committee be called.

It included a statement of the reforms proposed at the Chicago conference, which would provide for party recognition of the primary system of selecting delegates to the National Conventions and a change of basis of representation to conform to the voting strength of the party in the various States, a change directed against the heavy representation from the South.

Upon the merits of proposed reforms the Executive Committee does not pass. As far as contemplated reorganization plans are concerned the only thing the committee may decide is whether to call the National Committee. Many leaders assert that a convention is not necessary to carry out contemplated reorganization plans, that the committee can enact them. The Progressive Republicans, however, insist a convention is necessary.

Chairman Hillis said before the meeting began that the question presented would be referred to the National Committee. He was undecided as to the right of the National Committee to change the basis of representation in national conventions and declared that it was a legal matter upon which he had secured no advice.

Senator Jones, holding a proxy from Sam Perkins, National Committeeman from Washington, sat with the Executive Committee, and presented the ideas of Senator Cummins and the Progressives seeking an early national convention. Many Republicans of prominence, including former Speaker Cannon and former Representative McKinley, manager of the Taft campaign, gathered about the room where the committee met.

The question of choosing delegates by State primaries was not discussed at great length. Chairman Hillis and some others contended that a Congressional district should be allowed to choose its own delegates in any way it saw fit, notwithstanding provisions for a State primary.

"The party has insisted upon the right of Congressional districts to select their own delegates and a reversal of that policy would foist the unit rule upon us," said Chairman Hillis. "This was the point at issue in the California case in 1912. The right of a Congressional district to vote in a Republican national convention for the candidate of its choice has never been denied. It was affirmed in the convention of 1876 and again in 1880. The latter convention rejected the unit rule. This is the fundamental question and not to be confused with the recognition of delegates in primary elections."

The letter from the Conciliation Committee, signed by Senators Cummins, Jones and Crawford and Representatives Cramton and Rogers, and joined in by Representative Anderson and former Gov. Hadley, of Missouri, sets forth the report of the Progressive Republican conference in Chicago and asks for "a meeting of the Republican Committee in the near future to act upon the suggestion made by a great many Republicans that there be held during the present year a Republican national convention."

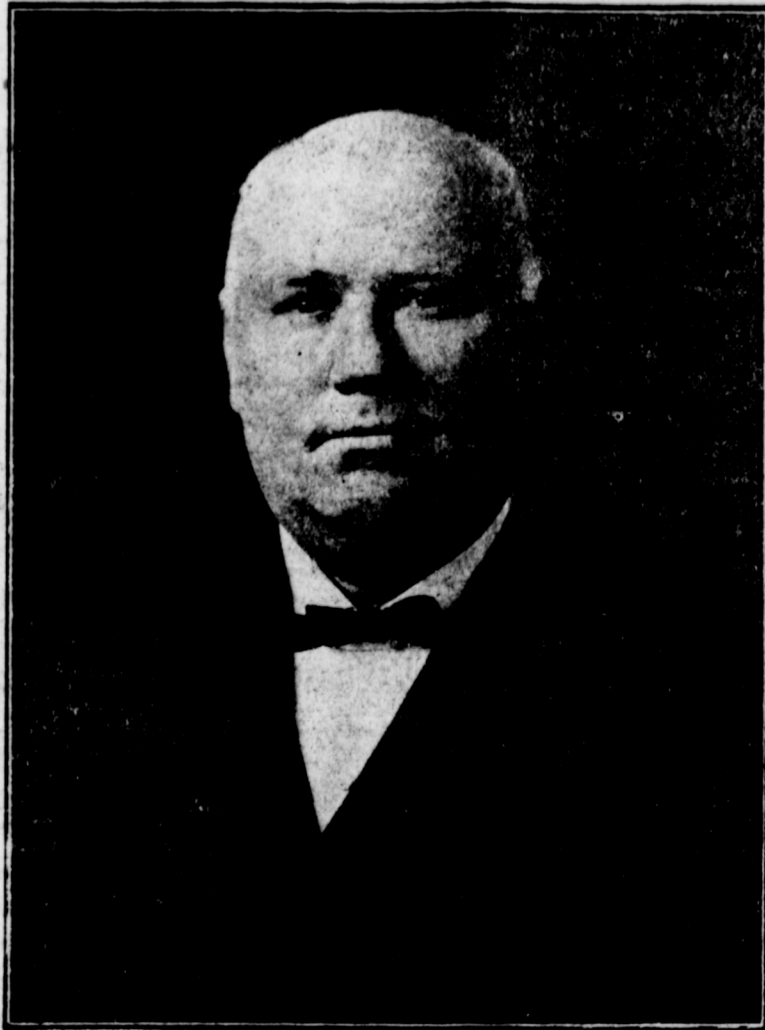

Setting forth the reasons for this request the committee says: "We believe that an overwhelming majority of the Republican party have reached the conclusion that the basis of representation in our national conventions is not only unjust, but contrary to the fundamental principle of representative government. Assuming that the will of the majority in any organization ought to prevail, it must be a real, not a fictitious majority. An actual majority will not long submit to an actual minority. The present system enables a minority of Republicans to control national conventions, dictate party nominations and determine party declarations, and however praiseworthy may have been the motive for its original adoption it is no longer defensible."

"We earnestly desire the restoration of the Republican party to full strength and power. Its principles are sound, wise and patriotic, and the body of the party will apply those principles to the conditions of modern times in an enlightened, unselfish way if they have a fair opportunity to do so. To give them this fair opportunity is the sole object of our request. So long as the voting Republicans in certain sections of the country have from eight to fifty times greater representation in a National Convention than the voting Republicans in other sections of the country, it cannot be said that the act of the convention is the act of a majority and discontent followed by revolt are the natural results."

"The existing rule promulgated by a convention held more than thirty years ago relating to the manner of selecting delegates needs revision. Some of the States have passed primary laws and others will pass them that are not in harmony with the rule and some provision must be made that will remove the conflict. We content ourselves by stating what seems to be an obvious conclusion. That we must either accept these primary laws or we shall have no Republican following in the States which have enacted them."

"We believe that it is more logical that Republican National Committeemen should assume office prior rather than subsequent to future regular Republican National Conventions. We believe that some method should be devised and put into

JUDGE WEDDING FOR RE-ELECTION.

JUDGE R. R. WEDDING.

I take this method of announcing my candidacy for nomination for re-election to the office of County Judge of Ohio county. I have served the people of Ohio county as County Judge for nearly three and one-half years, and during said time I have at all times done my best to discharge faithfully the various duties of the office, regardless of political or religious beliefs. I am profoundly thankful to those who supported me for this office and have no ill feeling against those who did not support me. I am thankful to my many friends who have asked me to become a candidate for re-election. Owing to the various duties of the office, it will be impossible for me to make a close canvass of the county, and I shall have to depend on my friends to look after my interests. I feel that I merit an endorsement and if given the nomination, I shall use all honorable means to secure my election and the election of the whole Republican ticket.

Yours truly,
R. R. WEDDING.

HIRED HORSE AND THEN SOLD IT

Was Sentenced to Jail Within Twenty-Four Hours After.

Central City, Ky., May 24.—J. W. Hogard supposedly hailing from the west will spend from 2 to 10 years in a Kentucky penitentiary as the result of his hiring a horse and buggy from a local stable and before 12 hours had elapsed had sold it to a man in Hopkins county. Fortunately for the local stable owners the proprietor of the stable at Madisonville, where the horse was lodged, recognized it, and getting in communication with the stable men here the man who had sold the horse and buggy was shortly under arrest, under the name of J. W. Wright, the name he gave at Madisonville. Hogard or Wright, neither of which names is considered to be the correct one, was caught at the station where he had a ticket for Evansville and the balance of the money on his person.

He did not resist arrest but went meekly before Judge Gordon, pleaded guilty to the offense of horsestealing, and was sentenced to the pen, less than 24 hours elapsing from the time the offense was committed and the time he was on the way to the penitentiary. He was a man of pleasant mien, well dressed, 53 years old, and made a good appearance generally. It is believed that he is wanted for a graver offense as he seemed anxious to be sentenced and to be taken out of the court room. After being told by the court that he had another day in which to make his plea, he stated that he wanted to plead guilty at once. Chief Langley, who made the arrest, is making an effort to locate his residence before he came to Central City.

Will Recruit State Guard.

Lexington, Ky., May 26.—Acting Adj. Gen. J. Tandy Ellis stated here today that the First Regiment, Kentucky National Guard, which has until recently comprised only eight companies, will be recruited up to the full complement of twelve companies. Already three companies are being organized and equipped at Lexington, Carrollton and Princeton, and a fourth probably will be recruited at either Bardonia or Springfield. It is expected that the new companies will be ready to participate in the annual encampment at Middlesboro in July.

Fusion Plan Suggested.

Rowan county Republicans have hit upon a novel plan for the selection of a coalition ticket for the county offices. The Republican County Committee adopted a resolution providing that the Republican and "Bull Moose" committeemen in each precinct appoint two men, the four from each precinct in the county to meet at Morehead on June 7 and constitute a convention to name a candidate for each office in the county, who shall have no opposition in the primary.

Notice.

The Hartford magisterial district, A. S. of E., will meet with the Washington local on Saturday, June 21st at 10 o'clock a. m. See that your local is represented.

CLOSE THIRTY THIRD YEAR

Of Active School Life Of
Hartford College.

Exercises Held Here This Week and Diplomas Presented To-night.

Beginning Sunday morning at the Baptist Church with the baccalaureate sermon and continuing with exercises this week each night, marks the close of the thirty-third commencement of Hartford College.

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Dr. S. M. Miller, pastor of the Broadway Methodist Church, Louisville, who preached an eloquent and inspiring sermon to an immense audience. Special music was furnished by special choir, representing all of the churches in Hartford, lead by W. J. Bean.

"Cinderella in Flowerland" an operetta in four scenes, was presented Monday evening at the opera house, by a large company of little people, under the direction of Miss Glenn and Miss Marks. The house was crowded Monday night, as every night this week, and the performance thoroughly enjoyed.

Those taking part in it were: Beatrice Griffin, Vera Midkiff, Amelia Pirtle, Juana Puckett, Ruth Lowe, Ambie Ford, Anna Belle King, Nellie Blair, Zula May Howard, Beatrice Bean, Sue Spalding, Gladys Bennett, Flora Rhoads, Rosethelyn Collins, Elizabeth Cauley, Margaret King, Clara Wilson, Mary Maxwell Bean, Kathryn Williams, Tiny Midkiff, May Palmer, Dorcas Lyons, Lillian Schapmire, Bonnie Sosh, Mary King, Marie Skaggs, Geneva Howard, Conant Rhoads, Udemah Rhoads, Wade Martin, Raymond Miller, Alfred Duke, Guy Daniel, Forest Casebeer, Jack Riley, Thomas Tyro, Louis Gray Brown, Raymond Yelser, Meville Rhoads, Bodine Carson, George Baugh, Philip May, Park Tappan, Harris Walker, Charles Faught, Ellis King, Walter Mischke, David Barnes, John Moore, Arnold Likens, Jennings Cauley, Virgil Crowe, William Davidson, Clifton Black, William Luce.

Between the second and third scenes, Master Lewis Gray Brown was presented with a beautiful medal, being given by his teacher, Miss Glenn, to the pupil in her department who received the highest grade during the entire year in geography, and Lewis Gray is a manly little fellow and is justly proud of his medal.

Tuesday night Miss Nall's music class gave a piano recital which was an enjoyable entertainment. Besides Miss Nall those who took part in the recital were: Misses Mary Laura Pendleton, Norene Black, Amelia Pirtle, Victoria Barnard, Kathleen Turner, Martha Pate, Kennedy Collins, Elizabeth Davidson, Lorena Ford, Margaret Coleman, Mattie Duke, Gorin Flener, Lucile Pirtle, Katherine Pendleton, Mariam Holbrook, Mrs. Otto Martin and Master Henry D. McHenry.

"The Honest Shoemaker" and a minstrel drill were given Wednesday night by the pupils of Prof. Anderson, and the drill brought much applause, so much that it was necessary for the "little niggers" to go back on the stage for the drill again. "Just Plain Dot" was a short little play given by pupils of Prof. Hedrick, and the participants played their part splendidly. Berry Dudley Walker deserves mention for the good manner in which he played the part of "Buster Black, the negro with a ravenous appetite."

Those taking part in the first play were Misses Victoria Barnard, Kennedy Collins, Ethel Barnard, Mabel Rhoads, and Messrs. Oscar Bennett, Henry McHenry, John Ross Taylor and Don Tichenor. In "Just Plain Dot" the following young people appeared: Misses Lurene Collins, Alice Foster, Anna Rhea Carson, Mary Barnard, Mary Bean, Mary Newbolt, Norene Black, Wilma Lowe, Winnie Dean Moseley, and Masters Berry D. Walker, Larkin Griffin, Glenn Tinsley, Hinton Leach and Randall Waterson.

Last night the annual high school declamatory contest was held, and a gold medal given to the successful contestant. On account of the Republican going to press before the close of the contest last night, we are unable this week to announce the successful contestant. The scholarship medal, offered each year to the pupil in the high school making the highest grades was presented. Those in the contest were: Misses Margaret Coleman, Edna Elliot, Ben-lah Miles, Nancy Ford, Elizabeth Moore, Clifflie Felix and Mr. Aaron Ross.

This evening will mark the close of the commencement exercises when the graduating class of 1913 will deliver their orations and receive their diplomas, which will be presented by Prof. H. E. Brown, principal of Hartford College. The graduates this year are Misses Mary Elliot, Lucile Taylor, Katherine Pendleton, Alma Riley and Mr. William Moore.

Vanderbilt Training School.

Elkton, Ky., May 24.—The commencement exercises of the Vanderbilt Training School will begin Sunday morning, when the Rev. Dr. C. C. Woods, of St. Louis, preaches the commencement sermon. On Monday evening the annual declamation contest between representatives of the Clay and Everett Literary Societies will take place, while on Tuesday night representatives of the two societies will debate the proposition, "Resolved, That women should have the full right of suffrage." The Clays have the affirmative, and are represented by Mode Spears, of Franklin, Ky., and John N. Williams, Jr., of Elkton; while the Everetts, through Robert Sleamaker, of Tolu, Ky., and Estill Barnett, of Hartford, Ky., deny. NOTE—The Everetts were successful this year in winning the debate.

Primary Not Far Off.

August 2nd, the date of the primary for the selection of those who wish to be voted for in the November election, is now little more than sixty days off and candidates who have not completed their petitions should do so at once. The law requires the filing of these petitions sixty days in advance of the primary. They must contain the signatures of at least 3 per cent of the voters of the county. It is better to procure the required percentage in each voting precinct, but this is not required by the law.

Most of the candidates have been circulating their petitions for some time and several have the required number of signatures. These will file their petitions in a short time. Signers should guard against signing the petitions of two aspirants for the same office, as signature to a petition is supposed to pledge to the candidate the support of the signer. Many have not read the petitions carefully before signing them, and have not understood this condition. It is unfair to a candidate to sign his petition, leading him to expect your support, and then vote for another aspirant for the same office.

Clew to Stolen Money.

Leavenworth, Kan., May 27.—Government secret service men who have been working on the mystery surrounding the finding of more than $2000 in $20 gold certificates on S. Leavenworth streets during the last month declared today it was their belief it is the money stolen in St. Louis since March 28, 1912.

This declaration was made upon receipt of a letter from the Treasury Department at Washington that several thousand dollars in $20 gold certificates, bearing the same serial numbers as the certificates found here, were sent from Washington to a St. Louis bank on that date.

All of the certificates were found in the vicinity of the home of Mrs. Sarah Williams, a negro, and grandmother of Charles Savage, who is now serving a ten-year sentence in the Federal prison for the Kansas City mail robbery.

Methodist Conference Ends.

Shepherdsville, Ky., May 24.—The District Conference of the Elizabethtown district and Louisville Conference after a three-days' session at this place, adjourned to meet at Har-ned, Ky., next year. There were several addresses delivered by able men, among whom were Dr. Wilkinson, pastor of the Fourth-avenue Methodist church; Dr. Frank Thomas, presiding over the Louisville district, and the Rev. W. G. Foote, pastor of the Broadway Methodist church.

PUBLIC ROADS

FOR BETTER ROADS IN IOWA

Joint Sub-Committee of Legislature Makes Recommendation Concerning Highway Improvement.

As the result of daily deliberations for some weeks by the committees of the Iowa senate and house, the joint sub-committee made the following recommendations concerning road legislation:

Establishment state highway commission, with ample authority. Commission to consist of three members appointed by governor. Three members to select competent state highway engineer.

County engineers for all counties to be employed by supervisors with approval of highway commission.

Classification of all highways into county and township roads.

From 10 to 15 per cent. of roads in county to be designated as county roads, to be under supervisors and county engineer.

All moneys expended on these roads to be in line of permanent work. No money to be paid except on approval of engineer.

All bridges and culverts, county and township, to be built in accordance with general plans of state highway commission, under direction of county engineer.

All township work to be put by trustees in hands of one man, to be known as superintendent of township roads, who shall make all contracts for dragging and temporary repairs.

Two-mill levy to be placed in compulsory drag fund, to be paid out by superintendent for that purpose only.

In case superintendent does work of grading on township roads, the county engineer must go over roads giving profile, so that grading can be done systematically, and township roads may be put in same condition as roads designated as county roads.

If the legislature will put these recommendations into a properly drawn bill and pass it, Iowa will have made a long step forward in handling the road question. Certainly the money spent on the roads will be better spent under competent supervision, says Wallace's Farmer.

These recommendations, however, do not directly encourage a beginning in the way of hard roads. It would seem that this legislature should do something in the way of stimulating permanent road construction in those sections where public sentiment is ripe for it. No good will come from trying to force good roads in communities where the people are satisfied with dirt roads. But the state can well afford to levy a one-mill tax and spend the money to defray a portion of the cost of permanent roads in communities in which the county or municipality and the abutting land owners will bear the greater proportion. Not a great deal of permanent road could be constructed in this way, but enough to serve as an object lesson, and this will be all that is necessary. A one-mill tax would amount to only $2 on each quarter-section farm. Surely the owner of 160 acres of Iowa land ought to be willing to contribute that much toward experimental hard roads. It seems so much worth while that we wonder that such strenuous objection is made to it.

Work at Louisville.

The city of Louisville, Ky., is asking for bids on street work as follows: 3,740 square yards of concrete; 18,000 square yards of wood block paving; 47,000 square yards of asphalt; and 34,000 square yards of vitrified block sidewalks. The whole will cost about $263,000.

Buy Many Automobiles.

Records show that there are now more than 700 automobiles in Williamson county, Texas, or about one car to every sixty people. Farmers are the principal buyers, on account of the great improvements in the roads.

Transportation Problem.

The farmers' transportation problem begins with the road that leads to his door to his school, his church, his mill, his gin, his postoffice and market.

Should Be Isolated.

If roads around a town are bad, might as well be on an island.

WORSE THAN HEAT PRODUCES

"Burn" Made by Cold Causes Stubborn Wound That Is Some Weeks in Healing.

Whoever has applied a moistened finger to a piece of frosty metal in winter well remembers the painful experience thereby gained of the fact that cold, as well as heat, can blister the skin.

During some experiments in the production of excessively low temperatures Pictet, the French investigator, burned himself with cold several times, and the effects were so remarkable, says Harper's Weekly, that he deemed them worthy of description to a body of scientific men.

It appears that there are two kinds or degrees of cold burn. In the case of the less severe "burns" the skin at first turns red, but becomes blue the next day. The inflamed spot swells, and a period, varying from a month to six weeks, elapses before the wound heals.

When the contact with the cold substance is longer and more complete, a burn of the second degree is produced. A malignant and stubborn wound is formed, and the process of healing is very slow.

A drop of liquid air falling on Pictet's hand, produced a cold burn which did not completely heal in six months, while a scorch from heat, accidentally inflicted on the same hand and nearly at the same time, was healed in ten or twelve days.

MARVELOUS GIFT OF SPEED

Feats of Old-Time Runner Make Present Day Performances Look Insignificant.

Have you ever heard of Ernest Menden? Years ago his renown spread all over Europe. His exploits made the pedestrian feats of the present day look insignificant.

He was a man who first came under notice by running from Paris to Moscow, a distance of 1,760 miles, in 13 days and 18 hours. In 1836 he ran through Central Asia from Calcutta to Constantinople, bearing dispatches for the East India company. The distance was 5,615 miles, and he accomplished it in 59 days, one-third of the time taken by the swiftest caravan. A favorite employment for him was as the messenger extraordinary of sovereigns. He ran from country to country, bearing letters and dispatches of the highest importance, and always beating mounted couriers matched against him. He never walked. Invariably he took the direct route to his destination, climbing mountains, swimming rivers and guiding himself through forests in a way known only to himself. His food was a small quantity of raspberry sirup.

Emerson's Trumpet Call.

In that unceasing march of things, which calls forward the successive generations of men to perform their part on the stage of life, we at length are summoned to appear. Our fathers have passed their hour of visitation—how worthily, let the growth and prosperity of our happy land and the security of our firesides attest. . . . The turn has come to us. The trial of adversity was theirs; the trial of prosperity is ours. Let us meet it as men who knew their duty and prize their blessings. Our position is the most enviable, the most responsible, which men can fill. If this generation does its duty the cause of constitutional freedom is safe. If we fail—if we fail, not only do we defraud our children of the inheritance which we received from our fathers, but we blast the hopes of the friends of liberty throughout our country, throughout Europe, throughout the world, to the end of time.—From Edward Everett's "The History of Liberty."

Curate Had Best of It.

A clergyman, called suddenly away and unable to officiate at the services in his own church, intrusted his new curate with the duty. On his return home he asked his wife what she thought of the curate's sermon. "The poorest I ever heard," she declared; "nothing in it at all." Later in the day the clergyman, meeting his curate, asked him how he had got along. "Finely, sir, finely," replied the curate. "I didn't have time to prepare anything myself, so I preached one of your sermons."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Joke on Elder Sister.

Money had come into the family and the young lady of the household had begun to put on airs. Using one day a term not understood by her little sister, eager Annie asked what it might mean. "I couldn't explain it so that you would understand it now," said the grown girl, impatiently, "but you'll know before you come out." "But I go out every day, sometimes lots of times," said Annie, innocently, wondering why her sister colored so hotly and the rest of the listeners laughed in such glee.

Bluebottle Heaven.

In the American Magazine there was an amusing story entitled "The Honor of the Bluebottles." Aunt Lucinda Bluebottle of Boston ran into a young man, who used a bad word. Aunt Lucinda goes on:

"The young man's language was not refined. He said he'd be damned, and that is exactly what will happen to him, I am sure, for whatever else heaven may be, I am convinced it will not be vulgar."

POULTRY

CURE FOR BROODINESS

Two Methods Given for Breaking Up Setting Hens.

Strenuous Measures Must Be Adopted to Dissuade Fowl From Her Purpose—Leghorns Are Most Popular for Eggs.

(By PROF. JOHN WILLARD BOLTE.)

Contrary to general impression, broodiness in hens is not a fever and we have no evidence to show that it is contagious. The ailment, if we may term it thus, appears without warning. The fowl may have been laying steadily and setting in a perfectly normal fashion, when suddenly she becomes imbued with a great distaste for active pursuits. She betrays a very crabbed disposition, rushing at her erstwhile friends and pecking them viciously whenever they approach her. Her plumage sticks out at right angles, making her appear about twice as large as usual. With head drawn deep into her hackle feathers, and wings and body taking up as much space as possible, she mounts guard over her chosen nest and defies all comers.

The hen becomes broody because nature prompts her with a sudden desire for a brood of chicks. She probably does not know why she does it, as she will take to potatoes or door knobs as kindly as to eggs, but she sets when the time comes just the same, and she will keep on setting until you break her up or let her hatch out a brood of chicks.

This pertinacity would not be so important if it were not for the fact that she quits laying and stays quit. She has decided upon a vacation and she refuses to work during this period. The loss of a couple of months of a hen's time is not to be thought of at any period, and especially during the spring, which is the natural time for setting and heaviest egg production as well.

If we do not wish to set the hen on eggs we will have to adopt strenuous means to dissuade her from her purpose and start her to laying again. There are a number of successful ways of doing this, and conditions will indicate the most favorable. The main thing is to act promptly and be thorough.

Remove the broody hens from the nests each night, as they are most easily detected then. They stick to the nest instead of going to roost. Dust them thoroughly with insect powder and confine them in an open slat crate or cage in a cool, light location. Keep water before them and give nothing to eat except a little whole wheat and green stuff once a day. This will not hurt the hen and about three days of this "water cure" will convince her of the error of her ways.

Another good way is to have a separate pen with absolutely bare floor and walls, and no possible place to nest, and place all of the broody hens in it, in the company of two or three vigorous male birds. This scheme is frequently used on large poultry farms.

The heavier breeds are especially addicted to broodiness, the Asiatics being the worst offenders and the Plymouth Rocks and R. I. Reds leading in the American class. Leghorns and Minorcas and Hamburgs set so rarely that they cannot be depended on to raise their young. For this reason the Leghorns are the most popular breed for large egg farms, as they waste no time setting and the young are easily raised artificially.

Most Fertile Eggs.

The eggs from mature hens will hatch better and produce stronger chicks than the eggs of pullets. They are usually larger, too.

Discarding Setting Hens.

The old setting hen is gradually going out of business, with several hundred manufacturers of incubators and brooders as competitors.

Don't Change Its Mind.

When once set, the incubator does not have the privilege of changing its mind as does old Biddy.

AS TO BOOKS AND EDUCATION

Gladstone's Advice and Summing Up Are Worth the Careful Consideration of All Readers.

And now I commend you again to your books. Books are delightful society. If you go into a room and find it full of books even without taking them from their shelves, they seem to speak to you, to bid you welcome. They seem to tell you that they have something inside their covers that will be good for you, and that they are willing and desirous to impart to you. Value them much. Endeavor to turn them to good account and pray recollect this, that the education of the mind is not merely a storage of goods in the mind. The mind of man, some people seem to think, is a storehouse which should be filled with a quantity of useful commodities which may be taken out like packets from a shop and delivered and distributed according to the occasions of life. I will not say that this is not true as far as it goes, but it goes a very little way; for commodities may be taken in, and commodities may be taken out, but the warehouse remains just the same as it was before, or probably a little worse. That ought not to be the case with a man's mind. No doubt you are able to oull knowledge that is useful for the temporal purposes of life, but never forget that the purpose for which a man lives is the improvement of the man himself, so that he may go out of the world having, in his great sphere or his small one, done some little good to his fellow creatures, and labored a little to diminish the sin and the sorrow that are in the world.—Gladstone on the Use of Books.

ECHOES LOUDER THAN SOUND

Probably Hard Thing to Imagine, But Science Has Proved It a Fact: Beyond Doubt.

To most persons it would seem impossible for an echo to be louder than the sound that produced the echo, but under certain rather peculiar conditions this is really true.

When a revolver is fired from a balloon the report is sharp, but not so loud as it would be if the gun were fired on the surface of the earth.

If the balloon is up something like 2,000 feet or higher, there will be a few seconds' silence after the revolver shot and then a roar or deep rumble will rise up from the earth.

If an explosive is lowered from the basket of the balloon until it hangs a few hundred feet below, and it is discharged with an electric spark from a battery in the hands of one of the aeronauts, there will come to the ears of those above a report like a revolver shot and then a few seconds of silence, followed by a peal of the loudest thunder ever heard.

There is no solid background about or above the balloonists to produce a rebound of the atmospheric sound-wave and the air is more dense below. Thus, when the sound-waves penetrate the denser lower strata of air and then the solid earth, the echo produced seems to the ears of the occupants of the balloon far louder than the original sound.—Harper's Weekly.

Advice About Reading.

Be sure, then, to read no mean books, shun the spawn of the press in the gossip of the hour. Do not read what you shall learn, without asking, in the street and the train. Doctor Johnson said he "always went into stately shops," and good travelers stop at the best hotels; for though they cost more they do not cost much more, and there is the good company and the best information. In like manner the scholar knows that the famed books contain, first and last, the best thoughts and facts. . . . The three practical rules, then, which I have to offer are: First, never read any book that is not a year old; second, never read any but famed books; third, never read any but what you like.—Emerson.

Best Wishes in the World.

He was an author, but an author without authority—which means, using the vernacular of the street, his stuff never got across. If his ability had equalled his industry, he would have had every novelist looking like an idler.

On this particular morning he walked into the office of a publisher who had rejected two or three bales of his manuscripts.

"Now, look here," said the author, "on the level, how can I sell a good book?"

The publisher's advice was excellent. He said:

"Write one."—Popular Magazine.

No Mystery About It.

Travelers in Europe are familiar with the sign "English Spoken," which is so often displayed in shop windows. In a small town in the south of Germany a traveler noticed in the window of a small shop the sign "Christian Spoken." He studied it for a moment and, being of a religious turn, he concluded that he would step inside and inquire about this new language. The joke was on him, for he discovered that the sign was none other than the name of the proprietor of the shop.

Anxious to Be Firm.

"Now, Rufus, I hope I have convinced you that there are no such things as ghosts."

"Yassuh. You has convinced me."

"You are absolutely sure?"

"Yassuh, an' all I hopes is dat no ghos' am g'inter come along an' force me to change my mind."

Agriculture Extension.

The death rate among young chickens in this state is very high. A large percentage of this loss is due to mismanagement. At the Experiment Station we have had splendid success in raising young chicks.

The vitality of the young birds depends very largely on the vigor of the birds that lay the eggs. We have found that we get the best results from eggs that are produced at that time in the spring when the flock is allowed considerable range on grass and other green crops. During the winter it is a common practice among poultrymen to house their birds closely. At this time fertility and vitality are very low, while later when the birds get out of doors, these qualities increase.

We have found that, in comparison with the incubator and brooder, the hen can very satisfactorily hatch the eggs and care of the chicks. We make the nests out of hay or some material that is fine in texture. Straw is rather coarse and allows the heat of the broody hen to escape, while the hay holds the heat in the nest.

When the chicks are hatched we keep them in the incubator, or allow them to stay with the mother 12 hours before feeding anything. Then we feed a fine chick grit and supply lukewarm water. The next day we give the first feed of fine cracked chick feed. Rolled oats are valuable but we have had splendid results from feeding nothing but chick feed and grit for the first week. At the end of ten days we feed a finely powdered "grow feed" which has in it beef scrap, fish scrap, wheat shorts and some other ingredients. The young birds are very fond of this and it makes them grow rapidly. We also sprinkle powdered charcoal in the feed once a day. Clean water is supplied in a sanitary fountain. The water is changed several times a day, as the chicks require a very large quantity of water. When the chicks are about two weeks old we pull a handful of green clover, tie the stems together with a string and hang the bunch of green material where the little chicks can pull off the leaves. Too much feed will cause scours, but some of it is needed.

The earthworm serves as a host for the gape worm. Therefore chicks that are allowed to roam over infected ground will contract gapes. By keeping our young chicks on ground that has not become infected, we have never had a case of gapes at this station.

When the chicks are with the hen we provide a warm nesting box separated from the remainder of the flock. If we are brooding the birds under a heated hen we are very careful to keep the temperature at 103 degrees F. while the chicks are young. If the young birds become chilled they will be weakened. Any deformed or weak chicks are killed during the first twelve hours of their lives. It is not a good practice to take weak chicks from the incubator and allow them to run with their stronger mates, because they will contract diseases and infect the entire flock.

If there are no trees in the yard where we put the young birds, we provide shade by making an awning out of feed sacks, or cotton cloth. Sunflowers also make a good shade. If the young birds when they are a month old can run in a cultivated field, it gives them exercise and furnishes considerable feed.

By following these methods we have had a splendid success in the rearing of young birds.—J. J. HOOPER, Professor of Animal Husbandry, College of Agriculture.

Flagged Train With Shirt.

Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but four bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at all druggists.

Injurious Possibilities.

When the present tariff laws were passed by a Republican Congress there was much excited talk by opponents about the "war" with other commercial nations sure to follow, principally as a result of the provision regarding maximum and minimum rates. As it turned out that provision, instead of causing a "tariff war," led to some very advantageous re-arrangements, and as everybody who takes the trouble to inform himself may learn, our foreign trade, both in exports and imports, has increased greatly. But there is a provision in the pending Democratic tariff act which is certainly full of injurious possibilities. As drawn, the clause permitting a reduction of five per cent in all duties collected on goods carried in American ships inevitably must result in a row with some foreign countries or a rearrangement of treaties with them. Says a Washington dispatch to The New York Journal of Commerce: "Twenty treaties between the United States and other governments will be violated grossly if the Underwood Tariff bill becomes a law in the present form." So Secretary of State Bryan and the diplomatists at the national capital are sitting up and taking notice. A little knowledge of international law and of treaty obligations would teach Democratic statesmen that they cannot smash such agreements as readily as they can the Tariff—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

Farmers are Hurt Most.

The proposed Tariff bill can scarcely be accused of tinkering with the subject, but it is a general slashing of rates. Whether or not such slashing is going to be productive of the results aimed at, the legislators, themselves, admit is uncertain. The cutting of rates on all agricultural products, and placing many of them on the free list is supposed to affect the cost of these products to consumers. But there is no evidence that the lawmakers have even the remotest idea as to the extent of this effect or whether their general reduction is discriminating properly between products of the same class. But even though protests will not avail now, farmers may be expected to remember that their industry has been subjected to the greatest reduction for the supposed benefit of consumers, while manufacturing interests are made to suffer least. The greatest menace, however, must come from the fact that the proposed rates are so largely experimental. This sort of tariff tinkering hurts, and the history of the past forty years teaches that it leads nowhere in the development of a stable national policy.—Pennsylvania Farmer.

Constipation, if Neglected, Causes Serious Illness

Constipation, if neglected, leads to almost innumerable complications affecting the general health. Many cases of typhoid fever, appendicitis and other severe diseases are traceable to prolonged clogging of the bowels. Regarding the effects of constipation, C. E. Ayers, of Sabin St., Montpelier, Vt., says: "I was afflicted with constipation and biliousness for years, and at times became so bad I would become unconscious. I have been found in that condition many times. Physicians did not seem to be able to do me any good. I would become weak and for days at a time could do no work. Not long ago I got a box of Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, and after using them found I had never tried anything that acted in such a mild and effective manner. I believe I have at last found the remedy that suits my case."

Thousands of people are sufferers from habitual constipation and while possibly realizing something of the danger of this condition, yet neglect too long to employ proper curative measures until serious illness often results. The advice of all physicians is, "keep your bowels clean," and it's good advice.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 25 cents a box containing 25 doses. If not found satisfactory, your money is returned.

The Sacredness of Marriage.

At the General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church at Atlanta a resolution was passed declaring marriage to be a sacred institution and calling for more strict and uniform marriage and divorce laws. Every expression of this kind is helpful, yet it would seem that the marriage question might be made more a matter of church discipline than it is. Some denominations have no disciplinary machinery, large latitudes being allowed to individual ministers and churches. But there are ministerial associations and various organizations which might so strongly get their seal of condemnation on the performance of the marriage ceremony by a minister, save under proper conditions of caution, that it would amount in force almost to authority.

Those who have made a study of the divorce evil have learned that much of it is founded on the marriage evil. Too easy marriage leads to divorce. Elopements, dares, joy ride engagements, divorce marriages, too youthful marriages, are all fraught with the potency of divorce. It would seem that the best way for the church to emphasize the sacredness of marriage would be for its ministers to refuse to perform the ceremony in all such cases. A safe rule would be for a minister to refuse to perform the ceremony unless he knew personally at least one of the parties and was entirely satisfied all the conditions were proper and calculated to make the marriage a good one. Strict rules in this respect, recommendations and resolutions in such denominations as have no supervisory authority, and discipline in others—as there already is in some—would do more to impress the public with the sacredness of the marriage ceremony when performed by a minister and relieve the clergy of much of the responsibility they now bear for the light regard the public have as to its sacredness.

Of course, stricter marriage laws are needed. The clergy can not bring about the reform alone, so long as the land throngs with justices of the peace, mayors and judges who see nothing in the marriage beyond a legal form authorized by a license. Regulations requiring publicity and the lapse of time between the application for a license and its issuance are the first and most obvious legal steps, but there are others of a restrictive nature which are likely gradually to be adopted. While this would not affect the sacredness of the ceremony it would prevent many hasty marriages. The sacredness of the marriage ceremony must be preserved and protected by the church itself, not by law.

Recognition of Chinese Republic.

At Peking, China, recently, the message of President Wilson of the United States recognizing the new Chinese Republic was delivered to Provisional President Yuan Shi Kai by the American charge, Mr. Williams. Troops lined the streets between the American legation and the Winter Palace along which the carriage bearing the American passed. The message recites how the American people have testified of their sympathy with the people of China in their assumption of the attributes and powers of self-government, and that the time had come for extending a greeting of welcome into the family of nations. President Yuan delivered a formal reply, thanking President Wilson and referring to the recognition as the culmination of seventy years of friendly relations between China and the United States.

In conclusion he declares the purposes of the new government in his paragraph: "The sole aim of this government is and will be to preserve this form of government and to perfect its working to the end that the people may enjoy its blessings, prosperity and happiness within; through the faithful execution of all established obligations."

FRIDAY, MAY 30.

The farmers of the United States have been denied a hearing before the Senate Finance Committee, when their products are threatened with ruinous competition and because they send some of their representatives to Washington, President Wilson denounces them as lobbyists.

It is a great pity to have the Democratic delegation from Kentucky in Congress worry so to keep out of sight of Caleb Powers. They make themselves ridiculous in the eyes of the rest of the country by continually saying they will not speak to or associate with Mr. Powers. If it should be admitted that Powers is guilty, as charged, it would not disgrace any of these men to extend to a fellow member the scant courtesy required of them.

Congressman Stanley is still accusing ex-Governor Beekham of some dark and almost criminal acts during his term as Governor of Kentucky. We have been expecting some vigorous denials on the part of the ex-Governor's friends, among the Democratic press, but so far it has not been forthcoming. Can it be possible that a Democratic Governor of Kentucky has been guilty of such false friendship for the people of the State as to commit the acts imputed by Congressman Stanley?

HARTFORD COLLEGE.

The present week has marked the close of the thirty-third year of Hartford College, and while the work has been done under most trying conditions, with the school scattered all over the town, making it most inconvenient for both teachers and pupils, yet it is commonly remarked by citizens of the town that insofar as actual advancement among the pupils is concerned, the school has never had a better year. Besides, the outside attendance has been unusually large considering the inadequate means for carrying for them, which was recognized to such an extent by the faculty that no catalog was issued last fall, as has been customary, and no advertisement or extra effort put forth to induce them to come.

The exercises at the opera house by the various departments of the school have been credited to both pupils and teachers in charge. The loss of the old school building by fire last June was a sad and heavy blow to Hartford, but the new and greater building, which is rising, Phoenix like, on the old ground, is enough to make the heart of every citizen of the town leap with pride, with the prospects in future store for the cause of education in Hartford and the surrounding country. This building may not be all that some of us had hoped for, but with its up-to-date appointments and greater accommodations in space, it will be a decided improvement over the old one and reflects the good judgment of the following citizens who composed the Board of Trustees who selected the design and made the contract: Dr. E. B. Pendleton, W. H. Barnes, W. S. Tinsley, Dr. J. W. Taylor and J. D. Duke.

With much better facilities than we have ever had before Hartford should make a new record as a school town and exceed the past brilliant work, which has attracted attention to us all over Kentucky and in other States. However, if this is to be accomplished it must be done by united effort. It means too much for our town and every citizen, whether directly interested in the school or not, to throw away opportunity by allowing petty politics and personal animosities to creep into the machinery through which this work must be accomplished. Politics of the teacher or his religious convictions should not be a figure whatever in the case. The qualifications and all-around fitness for the position should be the sole considerations in the employment of those who are to have charge of the work, which is or should be, near and dear to every parent in Hartford, and equally dear and dear to those of us who do not have children in the school, because a splendid school in our midst means the continued uplift of the town, morally, socially and financially.

Let us continue to stand by our teachers and uphold our school at every cost and make it really inviting to the outside world.

Submit the Underwood Bill to a Referendum.

The Underwood Tariff bill has been passed by the Free-Trade majority in the House of Representatives by a vote of 281 for and 139 against.

So far, the Underwood bill, dictated by a Democratic President, is an accomplished fact, in the sense of being an established political record upon which the Democratic party should be willing to stand or fall.

But the country has not yet passed judgement upon the Underwood bill. Public sentiment has not found expression regarding its provisions.

It will not do to say that the country has ordered the Underwood bill. The country has done no such thing. Quite the contrary.

Woodrow Wilson is a minority President, lacking 1,305,000 of receiving a majority of the votes of American electors.

The Democratic House is a minority House.

The Democratic Senate is a minority Senate.

Neither House nor Senate would now be in control of the Democratic party if the opponents of that party and its Free-Trade policy had not divided in their opposition.

Let the country have an opportunity to approve or disapprove of the Underwood bill.

The new Tariff rates embodied in the bill are a surprise to the country.

Generally speaking the people, including a very large number of those who in 1912 voted the straight Democratic ticket, did not anticipate any such drastic changes and sweeping reductions of the Tariff.

Now let the people be given the opportunity to examine and understand the Underwood bill.

Let the Senate refuse to pass the Underwood bill until the people have had that opportunity.

Let there be an agreement between House and Senate that there shall be a referendum on the Underwood bill at the polls in the Congressional elections of 1914.

If the majority of voters approve the Underwood bill, the agreement should be to pass it intact, word for word, the very first day of the session of the present Congress which begins the first Monday in December, 1914.

If the majority of voters disapprove, then let the bill die a natural death with the expiration of the Sixty-third Congress.

KAHN URGES LARGER

U. S. ARMY RESERVE

Member of the Committee on Military Affairs Asks Shorter Enlistments.

Washington, May 26.—Julius Kahn, who represents a San Francisco district in the House of Representatives, is the ranking Republican member of the Committee on Military Affairs, and naturally takes a great deal of interest in the army, and is particularly interested in having an army reserve.

"I am in favor of an army reserve," said Mr. Kahn, "but I believe the best way to create it is by short term enlistments. I would be willing to go as far as having enlistments for one year with the colors and three years in the reserves. In this way we would soon have a splendid lot of young men with a year's military training subject to be called into service during these three years following the end of their service with colors. They would be subject to demand by the country in case of an emergency and beyond question the most of them would be willing to respond to a call even after the expiration of the three years.

"Besides training soldiers the short term enlistments would tend to check desertions. Many young men enlist in the army on account of pique, trouble at home, a love affair or something which disturbs them for the moment. Others enlist for the adventure which they think it will afford, the opportunity to go across the water and see different lands and different people, and the chances it affords to see a different phase of life.

"After a short time they may regret their action and wish to get out. There is their four-year enlistment period ahead of them with three years in the reserves. It looks like a lifetime to a young man, and he begins to seek a way out by desertion. He changes his name and deserts, and is forever haunted with the fear that he may be caught and sent to prison.

"If the term was for one or two years, with an honorable discharge at the end of the time, the average young man would stick it out, become a useful citizen, and in most cases could be relied upon to respond to a demand for fighting men if an emergency should make it necessary. Shorter enlistments would result in many more trained soldiers and this is what the country needs.

"There are many people in this country who profess to believe that without the semblance of an army organization the United States could whip any nation on earth; that an army could spring up in a night and fight its equal numbers. We have had too much experience which has proved how costly that idea is in the loss of life and money. Men without training and officers without experience can not make a good army. My friend, former Congressman Prince, one of the best men I knew in the House, once when talking with me about possible trouble with Japan voiced the sentiment of that class, far too numerous, when he said: 'You people are unduly disturbed. There is no danger from Japan. Why, our people would rise up and sweep them into the sea with brooms.'

"But the trouble is they wouldn't come here with brooms," I told him. "They would come with guns and a right good notion of how to use them." "I am not advocating a large army," concluded Mr. Kahn, "but we ought to have a well-trained army, well equipped and commanded by men who have had experience in handling tactical units, and, what is very important, a reserve of trained men which can speedily be formed into an efficient fighting force in case of a sudden war."

CONFESSES MURDER OF WIFE IN HER BED

Indiana Farmer Clubs Mate and Sets Fire to Oil-Soaked Clothes.

Richmond, Ind., May 27.—Seth Lucas, a farmer, has confessed that he murdered his wife with a billy, poured kerosene over the bedding and set fire to his home near Williamsburg last September according to an announcement to-day by the police. Lucas is in jail here.

The burning of the Lucas home at the time was mysterious, but investigation revealed no incriminating evidence against Lucas. Reopening of the case came when Lucas appeared at the Police Station here last Thursday and acted so peculiarly as to excite suspicion.

Lucas' daughter, Mrs. Grover DeCamp, mysteriously disappeared last Friday. Inquiry at an address given in Indianapolis is said to have revealed that she had been there, but had returned to Richmond. The disappearance of the daughter followed a dispute with her father over the disposition of an estate valued at $1600 left by her mother.

Lucas, in his signed confession, which was made in the presence of Chief Gorman and Patrolman Vogel-sang, said he killed his wife because she was always nagging him and "because she had threatened to put a spider in my cup." He said they had been having trouble for two years over money matters. Lucas said he hit his wife with a billy, then poured kerosene on her.

"The first match I lighted," continues the confession, "my wife blew out. My wife shrieked and made a loud outcry." He said he then struck her again with the billy.

After making the confession, Lucas, who had been greatly agitated, appeared relieved. Lucas is 32 years old and his wife was about ten years his senior.

Railway Business for March.

For the month of March the operating income per mile of line decreased 11.5 per cent for the railways of the east, increased 8.8 per cent for the railways of the south and increased 3.6 per cent for the railways of the west as compared with March, 1912. The average for the railways of the entire country decreased 9.9 per cent.

This operating income for the 222,086 miles of line summarized by the Bureau of Railway Economics from the reports of the railways to the Interstate Commerce Commission aggregated for the month $52,137,897, or $235 per mile of line, which is equivalent to $7.57 per mile of line per day. Operating income is that proportion of their receipts which remains available to the railways for rentals, interest on bonds, appropriations for betterments, improvements, new construction and for dividends.

The aggregate of the total revenues for the month was $241,048,818, an increase of $9,864,272 over March in 1912. The operating expenses were $178,234,167, or $14,104,236 more than for March, 1912. The net operating revenue was $62,814,651, or $4,239,964 less than for March, 1912. Taxes were $10,418,258, an increase of 7.7 per cent per mile of line over March, 1912, leaving the operating income 9.9 per cent less per mile of line as stated.

HEAD CUT OFF

BY I. C. TRAIN

Henry Reissinger Attempted to Step From One Car to Another and Slipped Off.

Henry Reissinger, a young miner employed at the Martwick mines, was instantly killed by an I. C. freight train at a point near Nelson Saturday night. None of the train officials knew of the accident until after it had happened.

Reissinger had been in Central City on Saturday afternoon and was expecting to go back to Martwick on Sunday. He had just had a hair cut and shave at Treece's barber shop and was getting a shine when a freight train in charge of Conductor Shackelford passed along. Reissinger took a notion to catch the freight, and jumped aboard. Near Nelson he tried to pass from one car to another and missed his footing, falling between the wheels. His head was cut entirely off and one arm was also severed. There were several others on the same car who saw Reissinger fall.

Reissinger has lived in the vicinity of McHenry during his entire life and is the son of a miner employed at the Broadway mines. An inquest was held Sunday morning and the facts given above were established.

Fisherman Catches Four-Foot Moccasin.

Princeton, Ind., May 27.—While running a trout line in Patoka river last night, Homer Adams, of Patoka, pulled a four-foot water moccasin snake into his boat. It had swallowed a minnow on one of the hooks and was so near dead that Adams easily killed it, although decidedly startled when he realized what he had pulled in. Fishermen say they never before knew of a snake biting bait or hook; they will swim all around bait on a hook and never touch it ordinarily.

Marriage Annulled

Lexington, Ky., May 24.—The marriage of a fourteen-year-old school-girl, Nannie Wells, daughter of J. J. Wells, of Jessamine county, to Henry B. Stewart was annulled by the Fayette county Circuit Court here today on the grounds that the license had been secured through fraud. Stewart, it is alleged in the petition, instead of presenting the real bride-to-be when applying for the license in December, was accompanied by Mrs. John B. Stewart, a woman of mature years, who, it was shown, impersonated the would-be bride.

LINCOLN STATUE GIFT TO GREAT BRITAIN

Monument to Queen Victoria in Washington Part of Peace Celebration Plans.

New York, May 26.—Plans for the erection of a statue of Queen Victoria in Washington, the presentation of a statue of Abraham Lincoln to the British people and the holding of a historical costume ball, all in connection with the celebration in 1914-1915 of 100 years of peace among English-speaking nations were worked out at a meeting Friday of American committeemen in charge of preparations for the event. It was given out that the statue of Queen Victoria will be erected under the direction of a committee of women whose names will be announced at a later date.

The movement to present a statue of Abraham Lincoln to the British people was inspired partly by the admiration which the British delegates who recently visited this country expressed for a statue of Lincoln in Chicago. The committee plans that this statue shall be of heroic size and shall be done by one of the best sculptors in America.

The historical costume ball to be given some time next winter will be under the auspices of leading society women in this city. The costumes and incidents of the ball will be arranged to emphasize the epoch of peace marked by the celebration.

An idea as to the cost of the celebration in this country was given in the announcement by John A. Stewart, chairman of the Executive Committee, that the people of Chicago have decided to raise $100,000 for the celebration in that city. There will be similar celebrations in Washington, Boston and other cities. H. S. Ferris, secretary of the British committee, attended the meeting.

"It will be a matter of satisfaction to me to report that the last subject I heard discussed by the American committee was the erection of a statue of Queen Victoria in Washington," said Mr. Ferris on the eve of his sailing for Europe.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of a judgement issued from the Ohio circuit court in favor of the Fordsville Banking Co., against Sol Phillips and Jacob Newton, I or one of my deputies will on Monday June 2, 1913, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., at the court house door in Hartford, Ky., offer for sale the following real estate or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the above execution amounting to $20.00 with interest at the rate of 6 per cent. from the 15th day of February, 1903, and also the further sum of $8.25 adjudged as costs.

A certain house and lot in the town of Aetnaville, in the county of Ohio and State of Kentucky, and bounded as follows:

Beginning at a stone N. E. corner to Allen Buck; thence with his line S. 210 feet to a stone; thence E. 105 feet to a stone; thence N. 210 feet to a stone; thence with Owensboro and Leitchfield road N. 105 feet to the beginning, containing one-half acre of land, more or less. See deed book 12, page 478, Ohio county clerks office, date Oct. 15, 1892.

Laid on as the property of Sol Phillips, this April 4, 1913.

ALL PARTIALLY COLOR-BLIND

Extent of This Infirmary Is Not Generally Known Except to the Scientific World.

The various tests for color-blindness have come into practical use in the examination of railroad engineers and the like, where the ability to distinguish colors is necessary, so that these tests are no longer peculiar to the laboratory. But it is not generally known outside the laboratory that everybody is partially color-blind—that is, in certain parts of the field of vision. The most normal individual can see all the colors only when he looks directly at them. If looked at from an angle of about 15 degrees, red and green can no longer be seen, but in their places will appear shades of yellow or blue. This region of the eye is known as the yellow-blue zone. If the color be removed still farther to the side, the yellow and blue will disappear and only gray can be seen. This region is known as the zone of complete color-blindness. An interesting theory in regard to these zones is that every normal eye represents three stages of evolution. The zone of complete color-blindness is the lowest stage, and appears in such animals as the frog, whose vision is known as shadow vision. The blue-yellow zone is one step higher in the scale, although not clearly marked off in the animal kingdom. And the appearance of the red-green zone marks the highest stage of evolution. Cases of color-blindness are, according to this theory, a lack of development beyond the early stage in the individual life.—Professor Poffenberger in the Strand.

ACHIEVE SUCCESS BY STAGES

Elevation to Leadership Is On a Basis of Prestige, and Must Be Maintained.

As soon as a certain number of living beings are gathered together, whether they be animals or men, they place themselves instinctively under the authority of a chief.

As enthusiasm becomes inflamed, it happens most often that the then leader is he who started as one of the led. He has himself been hypnotized by the idea whose apostle he has since become. It has taken possession of him to such a degree that everything outside it vanishes, and every contrary opinion appears to him an error or a superstition. In time by affirmation, repetition and contagion great power is given to his ideas, and he acquires that mysterious force known as prestige. Every successful man, every idea that forces itself into recognition, ceases ipso facto to be called in question.

The proof that success is one of the principal stepping stones to prestige is that the disappearance of one is almost always followed by the disappearance of the other. The hero whom the crowd acclaimed yesterday is insulted today should he be overtaken by failure. The reaction indeed will be the stronger in proportion as the prestige has been great.—LeBon, in his book upon "The Crowd."

As an Owner Should Be.

Whilst it is each man's interest that not only ease and convenience of living, but also wealth or surplus products should exist somewhere, it need not be in his hands. Often it is very undesirable to him. Goethe said well: "Nobody should be rich but those who understand it." Some men are born to own, and can animate all their possessions. Others cannot; their owning is not graceful—seems to be a compromise of their character; they seem to steal their own dividends. They should own who can administer, not they who hoard and conceal; not they who, the great proprietors they are, are only the greater beggars, but they whose work carries out work for more, opens a path for all. For he is the rich man in whom the people are rich; and he is the poor man in whom the people are poor.—Emerson.

Hunger Strikes.

The problem of the hunger strike was not known in the seventeenth century. Then, however, it was allowed to solve itself. John Evelyn, for instance, in 1656, found martyrs to their beliefs in Ipswich, and entered the fight and its sequel in his diary: "I had the curiosity to visit some Quakers here in prison," he noted on July 8, 1656, "a new fanatic set, of dangerous principles, who show no respect to any man, magistrate or other. . . . One of these was said to have fasted 20 days; but another, endeavoring to do the like, perished on the tenth, when he would have eaten, but could not." There is no question of forcible feeding here!—London Chronicle.

Speedy Courtship.

A man recently in New York laid a wager that he would woo, win and marry within an hour a young lady whom, with his companions, he had just seen arrive at the hotel where he was living.

There is nothing in the American marriage law to prevent this dispatch. He introduced himself to the damsel, she smiled upon his suit, a minister was called in, and they were married within an hour.

The wager, of no inconsiderable amount, was handed to the bridegroom, who left with his bride the following day. It was shortly afterwards discovered that the couple had been man and wife, and that they had been traveling about playing the same trick at various hotels.

The Bible in the School.

The Northwest Church Life, for August, 1912, published at Seattle, Wash., where regular Bible reading in public schools is prohibited, says:

We have received from the Department of Public Instruction at Sydney, N. S. W., Australia, sample copies of the text books containing selected scriptures put out by the department and used in the public schools. These text books are very suggestive. They show us how we here in America, could have similar text books prepared, with selections from the Bible that might be used as classics, the selections to be made by broad committees, with such care that they would not be objectionable to any one.

For a long time we have thought it a most unfortunate matter that selections from the old classics are used so extensively in our schools, while no similar headings have been culled from the scriptures to be used as a part of the education of our youth.

It may well be considered as a serious question as to whether a person may lay claim to a liberal education, who has never had any training in the Bible. It is absurd to say that a satisfactory agreement cannot be made by a broad-minded committee upon suitable scripture selections for public school use. It can be done. It should be done.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The Republican-Progressive Platform.

First.—We endorse all the steps which have been taken by the County Republican and Progressive Executive Committees, leading up to and including the call for this convention to formulate a platform upon which candidates for the various county offices and member of the House of Representatives are to appeal to voters of Ohio county for support at the coming November election, under the Republican emblem, believing that it is best for those who may enter the General Primary to know what may be expected of them in advance, and fair to the people of the county to know just where their candidates stand, upon all questions of public interest.

Second.—We favor rigid economy in the conduct of all the business of the county to the end that taxes may be reduced to the lowest possible rate, realizing that we are burdened by the present high taxes, State, county and town.

Third.—As a matter of economy and in the interest of a better business system, we favor placing the fiscal affairs of the county in the hands of a commission to be composed of three persons to be chosen by the voters from the county at large; believing that the finances of the county can better be handled by a smaller number of men, who can be chosen entirely with their business qualifications in view. Under this arrangement the office of Justice of the Peace would not be detracted from, but its powers for usefulness in the maintenance of order in the various magisterial districts would be far greater.

Fourth.—The office of county assessor should be abolished, and the duties of that official performed by men chosen by the County Board of Commissioners, for each magisterial district.

Fifth.—The people of Ohio county deserve better roads and we pledge the candidates who may be nominated upon this platform if elected, to exercise their utmost powers to inaugurate a system which shall bring about this desired end in the speediest and best possible way.

Sixth.—We pledge our hearty support in behalf of every effort to improve our schools, for better buildings, more perfect sanitary conditions, a course in agriculture for every high school, and an agricultural experiment farm located in the county.

Seventh.—Our sympathies are with the farmers in their efforts to obtain better prices for their products, and especially do we sympathize with the tobacco growers of Ohio county and pledge them our support in their efforts to maintain an organization, whereby they may secure a just reward for the toll given by them to the production of this crop. We realize that the struggle is an unequal one and if necessary, we pledge them our support to secure Government aid in maintaining public warehouses, through which they may hold their tobacco until the buyers see fit to accord them fair treatment.

Eighth.—During the last twelve months the county has been impoverished and actual suffering has been brought about among the coal miners on account of slack work, charged, to the failure of the railroad to furnish sufficient cars. In order that this evil may be remedied we pledge our candidate for member of the House of Representatives to support a measure enlarging the powers of the State Railroad Commission and making it the duty of said Commission to require all railroads to furnish a sufficient number of cars, without discrimination, to handle the output of coal promptly, that the miners may have steady work, and we also pledge our support for any other wise measure, having for its object relief from this intolerable situation.

Ninth.—We condemn the present Democratic administration of Kentucky for its extravagance through increase of salaries, creation of countless, needless offices, and enormous appropriations which have resulted in the largest State debt in many years, and which is sure to require an increase in taxation through some form. We condemn it for its passage of the Confederate pension bill and its refusal to pay these men, many of whose claims have been proven for months, under the pretext that the bill is unconstitutional, although having appointed officials under the act, who are drawing their salaries. We condemn it for its failure to place the Penal institutions of the State under a non-partisan commission; refusal to pass a workman's compensation act; a corrupt practice act; and for lowering the school per capita. We also condemn the unanimous tendency of the State officials, from Governor down, to play politics, by looking ahead for some other job, instead of looking after the vital interests of the people of the State, whom they are sworn to serve.

Tenth.—Our candidate for member of the House of Representatives, who may be nominated upon this platform, should be selected by the people in the final election, is instructed and pledged to vote for the following laws:

A measure embodying the initiative and referendum.

The recall for all State, District and County officials.

An amendment to the Primary Election Law, providing for the election of delegates to National conventions, and for the selection of all party committeemen.

An amendment to the Primary Election Law, providing that where there is only one candidate of any party at the close of the time limit, the selection may be made through that party's committee.

An amendment to the Election Law, permitting any candidate to have the benefit of the votes of all parties which may support his candidacy by having his name placed under more than one device upon the ballot.

The repeal of the odious registration certificate law, which in every election has made easy the corruption of the ballot wherever certificates are required.

A measure prohibiting the use of money, with which to corrupt voters, and disfranchising any one who may sell or buy votes.

A corrupt practice act.

Workman's compensation law.

A measure placing our penal institutions under control of a non-partisan commission.

Repeal of the hunter's tax.

Repeal of the dog tax.

Abolishment of many needless offices created by the last session of the legislature.

A measure reforming the taxing system of the State which will place the burdens of taxation where they properly belong, instead of upon the men who own small homes and visible property, not easily evaded in the assessment.

A law giving the people of Kentucky equal advantages with those of the States North of us, by compelling the railroads to give us the benefit of 2 cents per mile passenger rate.

Upon all other matters not specifically mentioned herein, our candidate is directed to vote in the interest of progress, and for the general welfare of all our people.

Upon this declaration of principles the members of this convention pledge their hearty support to the candidates who may be nominated at the general primary election, first Saturday in August next, under the Log Cabin, for the various offices to be voted for in Ohio county at the coming November election.

Respectfully submitted,

A. D. KIRK,
M. L. HEAVRIN,
J. A. LEACH,
S. L. STEVENS,

FARM POULTRY

GOOD HOUSE FOR THE FOWLS

Should Have Southern Front and Yards May Be Laid Off for Individual Pens if Desired.

A good poultry house may be built after plans shown in the drawing. Such a house may be made any length desired and partitioned into six-foot breeding pens, 16 feet deep, which would give 7 1/3 square feet per bird for one male and 12 females. The house should have a cement or board floor and can be so built as to make it rat, wind and rain proof. I prefer a floor of cement, writes William Scott of Abilene, Kan., in the Farmers Mail and Breeze.

Good for Several Uses.

Individual pens if desired. This kind of house is also suitable for raising early hatched chicks.

The upper windows are hinged so they may be swung open at any desired angle or to be hooked up as the weather demands. The lower front is covered with one-inch mesh wire and a drop canvas or windows may be used. The window should be hung so as to swing in at any desired angle. Roosts are placed along the north wall. A single roost running the length of the building and set out two feet from the north wall, may be made to serve the purpose.

A roost shield for cold weather can be made of a frame the length of the roosts and two feet wide, to be covered with sound burlap on top and sides. Place this frame six inches above the birds' heads and let the burlap hang a foot below the roosts. This frame should be drawn up out of the way each morning.

If nests are placed low enough not many hens will lay on the floor and it is often considered better still to place them right on the floor. A screen made of burlap so it will almost hide the nests make them more attractive to the hens and helps to prevent egg-eating.

'SULPHURING' THE HEN HOUSE

Job Should Be Performed at Least Once Every Month—First Remove All Combustibles.

To burn sulphur in a poultry house first remove all combustible matter. Then put an old iron kettle into a dishpan and place on four bricks in the middle of the house. In the kettle put some coals which have been soaked in a solution of one part of pine tar to four parts of kerosene, sprinkle the sulphur over the coals and set on fire.

Be sure to have everything arranged so as to beat a hasty retreat from the room and close the door quickly as the sulphur fumes are suffocating. Sulphur burned in this manner will penetrate every crevice as well as covering the surface and aids wonderfully in purifying the building and in destroying poultry vermin.

One pint of turpentine may be added to the half gallon of kerosene as well as the pine tar with beneficial results. Once a month is none too often to burn sulphur in every poultry house.

POULTRY NOTES

Never breed from immature stock. Ground bone is great for laying hens.

The first symptoms of roup—swollen eyes.

Dampness and chilling mean sure death to chicks.

Do not allow the fowls to be exposed to the strong winds.

Soft-shelled eggs are a sign of lack of lime or of over-feeding.

Scrub hens kept by scrub poultrymen make a bad combination.

Sifted ashes scattered under the roosts make an excellent absorbent.

Try hard never to catch a hen by the wing or feathers; grab her by the legs.

A little granulated charcoal mixed in the soft feed is excellent in cases of diarrhoea.

If there are cracks in the walls of the houses, the chilly winds are sure to create a draft.

The best way to run an incubator is to follow the directions that come with the machine.

The hen that will not scratch for her living is too lazy to make you a profit as a layer.

Leghorns make poor sitters. Better not trust the eggs to them. They are better layers and foragers than sitters.

Rules Governing Pony Contest.

1. Any boy or girl not over the age of 16 years, living in Ohio county, may enter the contest.

2. This contest shall begin Friday, March 21, 1913, and shall close on Saturday June 23, 1913. A coupon good for 10 votes will be printed in The Hartford Republican for the first four weeks of the contest. These coupons when properly filled out may be voted by anyone for any contestant. To be complete they must include the border. To be counted they must be brought or mailed, (as shown by postmark) to this office on or before the date shown on each coupon.

3. Contestants will be furnished with receipts to be given for all payments on subscriptions, and as many sample copies of The Republican as desired.

4. Special voting coupons will be issued for payments on subscriptions, (new or old) as shown by schedule herewith. These can be voted at any time during the contest. The number of votes indicated will in no manner be changed during the progress of the contest.

SCHEDULE OF VOTES FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS.

One year $1.00 200 votes
Two years 2.00 500 votes
Three years 3.00 1,000 votes
Four years 4.00 1,400 votes
Five years 5.00 2,000 votes

5. No employee of The Hartford Republican, nor member of their immediate family, may enter the contest.

6. Votes can not be bought, and once issued to, or cast for, any contestant, may not be transferred to another. All subscriptions secured by contestants, together with the money for same, are the property of The Hartford Republican and must be turned into this office. Subscriptions taken in the name of one contestant may not be transferred to another in any manner, but must be turned in to this office and counted for the one in whose name they were secured. Any contestant dropping out of the contest will lose the votes cast for them.

7. Contestants, or their friends, need not tell anybody anything about their votes; if they do, they must tell the truth or they will be ruled out of the contest.

8. No subscription may be taken for more than five years in advance, but in addition an old subscriber may pay all arrears owing and votes will be issued accordingly, thus, say for a total of seven years: 2 years arrears 500 votes, 5 years in advance 2,000 votes, total 2,500 votes.

9. Voting coupons and subscriptions must be sent direct to the Contest Editor. Money sent by mail must be registered, money order or check, otherwise The Hartford Republican will not be held responsible for it in any way.

10. Votes can be secured only by the means set forth in these rules.

11. No contestant will receive any aid from The Hartford Republican about any contestant's vote. No count of the votes will be made at any time, until the final count, when the winners will be announced. The ballot box will be in plain view in this office. The box will be securely locked and the key deposited at the Bank of Hartford until time for final count.

12. The contestant, boy or girl, who receives the highest number of votes will receive a first class, gentle and well broken Shetland Pony together with a full set of harness and a pony buggy and will be given to the winner after count is made. The contestant, boy or girl who receives the second highest vote will receive a $30. bicycle; if boy is winner, a boy's bicycle and if girl is winner, a girl's bicycle. The contestant, boy or girl, who receives the third highest vote will receive a $15 gold watch.

13. Three competent and impartial judges will be selected to count the votes on hour the contest closes.

14. All contestants, by entering this contest, bind themselves to accept and abide by the foregoing rules.

15. The publishers of The Hartford Republican shall at all times be willing and glad to furnish any information in regard to the contest.

16. The hour of closing the contest will be announced by publication in the issue of the week preceding the close.

WOMEN TAKE NOTICE!

A man cannot understand the torture and suffering many women endure uncomplainingly. If the majority of men suffered as much pain and endured with patience the weakening sicknesses that most women do, they would ask for immediate sympathy and look for a quick cure.

Many women have been saved from a life of misery and suffering by turning to the right remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy which is safe to take because containing no narcotics, alcohol or injurious ingredients. It is an alterative extract of roots, made with pure glycerin, and first given to the public by that famous specialist in the diseases of women—Dr. R. V. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. LIZZIE M. HESSEMER, of Lincoln, Neb., 520 "C" St., says: "I send a testimonial with much pleasure so that some suffering woman may know the true worth of your remedies. I was a great sufferer from female troubles but after taking one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which a friend advised me to take, I found myself very much improved. After taking three more bottles, and using two boxes of Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets, I found myself on the road to recovery. I was in poor health for five years but now I am cured."

"I hope all women suffering from female weakness will give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a fair trial."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

You Need a Tonic

There are times in every woman's life when she needs a tonic to help her over the hard places. When that time comes to you, you know what tonic to take—Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which act gently, yet surely, on the weakened womanly organs, and helps build them back to strength and health. It has benefited thousands and thousands of weak, ailing women in its past half century of wonderful success, and it will do the same for you.

You can't make a mistake in taking

CARDUI
The Woman's Tonic

Miss Amelia Wilson, R. F. D. No. 4, Alma, Ark., says: "I think Cardui is the greatest medicine on earth, for women. Before I began to take Cardui, I was so weak and nervous, and had such awful dizzy spells and a poor appetite. Now I feel as well and as strong as I ever did, and can eat most anything." Begin taking Cardui today. Sold by all dealers.

Baseball News.

Hartford ball team was in hard luck last Saturday when they played against Taylor Mines at this place. At the wind-up the score was 13 to 7 in favor of the visitors. Peters, the Taylor Mines pitcher, was in good shape, although his own team did not know how to count on him and then Peters had good support, all through. Barnett, pitcher for Hartford, was in very good shape, but his support was not good and many errors were made by Hartford. The line-up was as follows: Hartford, Taylor, ss; Rosenblatt, 3d; Rickard 2d; Barnett, p; Hunter 1st; Thomas rf; Thorpe, catcher; King, lf; Iglehart cf; Taylor Mines, Frazier, 3d; Peters p; Flat c; Plummer 2d; Westerfield cf; Brown ss; C. Taylor 1st; Ament lf; Liles, sub.

THE SCORE.

Hartford . . . 0 1 1 3 0 0 1 0 1—7
Taylor M. . . . 0 4 0 3 0 3 2 1 0—13

The Hartford boys journeyed to Livermore Sunday where they played that afternoon against Livermore, defeating them for the second time this season, the score being 8 to 5 in favor of Hartford. Rickard and Thorpe was the battery for Hartford. Many fans from here witnessed the game.

Deanfield got a notion into their head that they could wallopp the locals and accordingly it was tried out here Wednesday afternoon at Eclipse Park before a large crowd, in fact the attendance was up to the usual Saturday crowds. Score, Hartford 5; Deanfield 1. For a long time it certainly looked like it would be a shut-out game in favor of the locals, but in the last inning, with two men out and two strikes and three balls on the batter, Barnett grew wild and the shut-out business was called off, and one score was made by the visitors. Our boys said after the game they did not want to treat them too badly. The locals, all of them, were in dandy shape, and every time knew where to land on the pill. Deanfield had a good pitcher, who threw like a cannon shooting balls, in fact nearly all of their men could throw long and hard, but nothing to compare with Jack Thorpe's throwing from home to second.

The line-up Wednesday was as follows: Deanfield, Loyd 2d; Phillips rf; Bowman c; Neel 1st; Beavens 3d; D. Bowman ss; F. Bowman cf; Frank Bowman p; W. Phillips lf; Hartford, Taylor ss; Rosenblatt cf; Rickard 3d; Barnett p; King 1st; Thomas lf; Thorpe c; Robertson 2d; Tinsley rf; Hunter, coach.

THE SCORE.

Hartford . . . 2 1 0 0 1 0 0 1 x—5
Deanfield . . . 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1

Island Station plays Hartford here Saturday afternoon.

Rockport will play Hartford here Saturday week.

TINSLEY WAS ALWAYS THERE.

Tinsley is a new member on the Hartford team. He made good Saturday, all right. Keep your eyes on him. He's good stuff.

"Mutt" Hunter did not get in the game Wednesday, but did good coaching on the third base line.

Mr. R. T. Collins is the new official umpire for Hartford. He is an old timer at the game, and understands his business. No use to question his decisions. When made they stand, and so does Collins.

Judge C. M. Crowe, Marshal Stevens and "Pete" Casebier were three fans at the game Saturday who are always there, rain or shine.

Hartford ladies are as interested in seeing the home team win as the men.

Andrew Glenn is always on the side line, rooting.

Henry Nall does good service at the ticket office.

Reverses and Repudiates.

The fatal fault with the Democratic Tariff measure is that it reverses not merely the long-sustained system of Protection to American industries, but it repudiates a policy which has been common to state and local communities in the United States from time immemorial. Everywhere municipal governments, law-making bodies and taxing powers go as far as they can to encourage manufacturing, by donating sites and relief from taxation, in order to promote the general welfare and prosperity of the community.—Dayles-town (Pa.) Intelligencer.
